

AS SEEN BY A WASHINGTON WOMAN

COURSE THE MEN APPROVE.

"Do men feel the same prejudice against their wives' clubs that they feel ten years ago when the women's club movement was in its infancy? Do they object to women's clubs? Do they care that they take their wives and daughters away from the home, and from domestic and household duties?"

When this question was put to Mrs. Court F. Wood, the president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday, she didn't hesitate to answer:

"Nowadays men like to have their wives interested in clubs. Of course they do. And the children like to have their mothers belong to clubs, too. For it gives the wife and the mother a new interest, an interest outside the routine of the home. Matters of civic importance are much more interesting to the men and children of the family than the question of how many minutes late cook arrived that morning or how much soap she used in the laundry. And when a woman holds office in her club, or accomplishes something through her club there is no one more proud or pleased than the husband. Oh, sometimes they say that clubs take too much of their wives' time, but they like to have their wives belong. Of course they do."

When the same question of man's attitude toward women's clubs was put to Mrs. Edward B. Clark, president of the Twentieth Century Club, little later, she waved the question away with a smile. "The theory that clubs keep women from the home is exploded. No one worries about that any more," she said, and later she explained that in her opinion there was no mistake in belonging to many clubs. Club membership should include club work, and one of two clubs are all that a woman can very well attend to. To be sure she may belong to associations and charities of various sorts that do not require frequent attendance at meetings. But the woman's club, strictly speaking, is something that demands a woman's work as well as her interest, and best results are obtained where a woman limits her membership to only one or two."

CATHOLICS OBSERVE FEAST.

Churches Celebrate Immaculate Conception of Virgin Mary.

The feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary was observed with special services by the Catholic churches throughout the United States yesterday. In each of the local churches the order of services was practically the same as on Sunday.

The principal ceremonies were at Catholic University and the Franciscan Monastery, both in Brookland. The entire city and suburbs of the university were assembled in Divinity Hall and marched to the mass that was celebrated in the university chapel. Following the mass, the university students, the university, entertained the deans of the various colleges at dinner.

Three-day Retreat Planned.

A three-day retreat for men will open at St. Stephen's Catholic Church tonight, with Rev. Ignatius Smith, of the seminary college, in charge of the services. There will be a sermon and benediction each evening, and on Sunday morning at 8 o'clock the men will attend special mass. The retreat will close with the enrollment into the Holy Name society of those who attend.

One of the attractions of the church is a fortune-teller's tent. A lady took her 16-year-old, red-haired, freckled son inside. The fortune teller was a very distinguished man in his long enough; he murmured in deep, mysterious tones.

"Oh, how nice!" gushed the proud mother. "And what will he be distinguished for?"

"For old age," replied the fortune teller slowly.—Knoxville Sentinel.

She Ages Sixty Years in Two Hours to Help "Cause"

MRS. FLORA KEYS HANSON
As Susan B. Anthony.

Until next Tuesday night Gaby Deslys will still hold the championship in the art of rapid-costume changes. After that the palm will have to go to Mrs. Flora Keys Hanson, who is to take the part of Susan B. Anthony in the great pageant to be given at Convention Hall at Fifth street and New York avenue, under the auspices of the Congressional Union and under the direction of Miss Hazel Mackay.

Not only does Mrs. Hanson have an entire change of costume for each of her ten appearances, but she has to undergo a lightning change of make-up for each in order to convince her audience that she is actually growing up from the young school-teacher of 20, who appears in the first setting, clad in simple Quaker dress, to the 80-year-old suffrage leader in the birthday scene that completes the pageant.

"When I met Mrs. Hanson at the headquarters of the Congressional Union yesterday she had just arrived from her home in Hyattsville to attend a rehearsal.

"How can you look so fresh and composed?" one of the delegates asked her, "when we all look so weary. Aren't you at all nervous over the big undertaking that you have before you?"

"No," answered Mrs. Hanson, in her well-modulated tones, "I really haven't thought of being nervous over it, though I expect to be very busy now with rehearsals all the way to the end."

"I haven't ceased wondering how it happened to be chosen to take Miss Anthony's part when there were so many for Miss Mackay to choose from."

"Although I have always been a suffragist, I have never belonged to any Washington suffrage organization. When I heard of the pageant my friends persuaded me to volunteer and the result was that I was chosen to take Miss Anthony's part. But the part does not consist of the usual suffrage work, as I interpret it, but the development of the suffrage movement all the way from 1840 to 1915. The performance is not to be a play, you know, but a pageant on a perfectly enormous scale. There will be no story to 'get across,' no special plot to follow out, but the succession of ten scenes will represent the development of the movement during the nineteenth century. There will be four hundred in the cast and about 65 costumes. Besides the seventeen principals there will be a chorus of women and large number of men and women who will appear as the audience and as the jury and others in a court room and so through the performance."

Mrs. Hanson is a graduate of the Cummock School of Oratory, at Northwestern University, and is a professional reader of wide reputation. Several other Hyattsville residents have given their services to this mammoth undertaking.

"This undertaking is indeed one of the most remarkable things that Miss Hazel Mackay has ever done," said Mrs. Hanson, "and we who have rehearsed under her direction have been from the start amazed at the amount of previous work that she must have done in order to produce the wonderful effects that she does. It is not only the largest event of its kind that has ever taken place in this city but it will be performed on the largest stage that has ever been erected in the city. Owing to the enormous size of convention hall care has been taken to limit the speaking parts, and to produce effects largely through scenic methods. The work of the chorus will also greatly assist to the effectiveness of the pageant."

Washingtonians Taking Part.

The other principal parts have been assigned as follows:

Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Mrs. Charles Stanley; Lucretia Mott, Miss Catherine R. McCormick; Wendell Phillips, James R. Dale; William Lloyd Garrison, Charles O. Shaw; Daniel Anthony, Howard Treat; Mrs. Daniel Anthony, Miss Adelaide Townsend; Hannah Anthony, Miss Leonarda de Grange; Mary Anthony, Miss Margaret Pierson; Mrs. Amelia Bloomer, Mrs. Margaret Hopkins; Worcester, Prof. E. C. Towne; Judge Hunt, J. B. Peat; Clerk of Court, Bennett Hunt; Richard Henry Lee, Frederick Monroe Rogers; Farmer Lord Andrews, Clarence Howard; Margaret Howard and Eloise Orme and the Misses Barker.

Mrs. Mortimer Clark has co-operated with Miss Mackay in the plans for the stage settings. The trainer of the chorus is Mrs. Lucy W. Metcalf.

Chairmen of committees who have borne the brunt of the hard organizing work are: Assistant director, Mrs. Randolph Keith Forrest; participants, Mrs. W. T. Burch; costumes, Mrs. William D. Neely; lighting, Mrs. Morven Thompson; stage setting, Mrs. Mortimer Clark; publicity, Mrs. Benton Mackay; music, Mrs. Estelle Willoughby.

The patronesses are Mrs. Christian Hemmick; Mrs. George Odell; Mrs. G. Brown Miller; Mrs. Henry Blount; Mrs. Morven Thompson; Mrs. Barrett Ridgely; Mrs. Robert Peary; wife of Rear Admiral Peary, U. S. N.; Mrs. Richard Walcott; Mrs. Robert Baker; Mrs. Henry MacFarland; Mrs. Appleton P. Clark; Mrs. Theodore Neaves; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley; Mrs. Henry Graves; wife of the Chief Forester, U. S. S. C. B. Sigbee; wife of Rear Admiral Sigbee; Mrs. Clara D. Neely; Mrs. Sutherland; Mrs. George Sutherland; wife of Senator Sutherland; Mrs. Reed Smoot; Mrs. William B. Borah; Mrs. Thomas J. Walsh; Mrs. Frank W. Mondell; Mrs. Reeve Lewis; and Mrs. Henry Ashurst, wife of Senator Ashurst.

FAMOUS WOMAN, HER BIRTHDAY AND YOURS

By MARY MARSHALL.

December 9—Emma Abbott Wetherell

The birthday celebrity for December 9 is one of our most popular sopranos. She was born in Chicago, Ill., 1849, and inherited her musical ability from her father, who was a traveling musician. With him she went about from place to place, giving concerts in houses and on street corners. The father played a violin and little Emma played a guitar and sang. It became apparent when she was a girl that she had a voice of unusual ability, and she determined to make a name for herself in the musical world.

When she was 18 she started out to New York with her guitar, a grip and only enough money to reach Fort Wayne. There she had to stop, hoping to earn enough money to resume her trip. Although she did not get as much money as she had hoped, she was encouraged when she heard Clara Kellogg was in Toledo. Taking what savings she had, she went to that city, where, although she did not have enough to buy a ticket to hear the great singer, she made her way to Miss Kellogg's dressing-room. She told her of her ambitions, and after singing for her she asked the prima donna to sing for her because she had not the price of a ticket to hear her in concert.

Not only did Miss Kellogg sing for the ambitious young singer, but so pleased was she by her voice and her personality that she gave her enough money to continue her way to New York and made it possible for her to make a home in that city with a friend who would help her in her efforts to gain recognition. Immediately she got a position in a church choir at $100 a year, and later received a purse from her friends in order to study abroad.

Apparently fortune followed the ambitious young singer, for through the influence of her teacher in Paris, who was also the teacher of a child of Baroness Rothschild, Miss Abbott met the rich banker's wife, who gave her financial support to finish her musical education.

After her marriage she was especially successful in concerts and with her husband amassed a large fortune, much of which she left by her will to the churches that had given her aid in her early struggles.

HOUSEWIVES DAILY ECONOMY CALENDAR

By FRANCES MARSHALL.

INSTEAD OF A MAID.

The greatest desire in the world for many women is for a personal maid—somebody to massage them, dress their hair, hook up their frocks, mend and wash their clothes, and otherwise care for their physical comfort.

Only a very small percentage of women can afford to pay for the services of a lady's maid. In fact, the majority of the women of the world can afford no sort of servant.

But since everybody there is that craving for personal attention that only a maid can give. At least, we think that only a maid can give it. But it is perfectly possible for anybody to get a good deal of the feeling of being well groomed and cared for that a woman who has a maid experiences.

First, decide how much a month you can spend to make yourself more comfortable. Then say to yourself, "Suppose I had a maid; what would I ask her to do first? Perhaps your frocks are in bad condition and you have several luncheon, matinee and card party invitations. Your first thought is that you would have your maid press your frocks, mend them, and freshen them up generally. Very well; have in a seamstress who can do this work, or send the frocks to one of the mending shops that big cities afford.

Perhaps your hair is the despair of your days. It has got into bad condition. You can't do a thing with it. Call in a hair expert. Let her shampoo the hair, singe or clip the ends, massage the scalp. Let her give it regular treatments until it looks normal again. Have her dress it becomingly and fashionably.

Perhaps your skin is harsh and dry. Then visit a reliable beauty parlor. Have your face massaged and steamed. Have your hands manicured and massaged. Don't think that one or two treatments are going to put you in condition; don't overstep the limit you have set for spending, but follow out your course of treatment for hair, skin or clothes—for several weeks.

DAILY FASHION HINT

ADORABLE MODES FOR THE BOUDOIR.

A sense of elation comes over one at the sight of these charming boudoir styles. The design with the broad tucked collar is made of white china silk lined with pale pink albatross. Insertion in yoke as a heading for the accordion pleated silk frill that outlines the entire negligee. In average size the model requires 5 yards 36-inch silk, with an equal quantity of albatross, with 4½ yards insertion and an extra yard of silk for the pleated ruffle.

Plain blue organdy caught up at each side, a cluster of pink roses and trimmed with black velvet ribbon is the exquisite combination shown in the second negligee. Lace or net may be used for the outlining frill, which is put on with a blue satin cord. Four and three-quarter yards of organdy, 7 yards of lace and 1½ yard ribbon velvet are required for the model.

Other New York visitors, all arriving yesterday at the same hotel, were Mr. and Mrs. H. L. R. Emmet, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Winne and Mrs. Alfred M. Coates.

Prince von Hatzfeldt, counselor at the German Embassy, entertained several of his colleagues at luncheon in the Rose Room of the Shoreham yesterday.

Mrs. Belmont Tiffany, of New York, is at the Willard. She is a member of a party including Mrs. Bruce Clarke and Miss Louise Leland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Leland, who made the trip down from New York in the Leland private car. Miss Anne Depew Paulding, niece of former Senator Depew, Mr. and Mrs. W. Lowe and Mrs. F. M. Shepherd, of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sawyer, of Stamford, Conn., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Donnelly, of St. Paul; Mr. and Mrs. George E. Barbel, of Philadelphia, and Mr. and Mrs. William J. Stephens, of New York, were other prominent arrivals there yesterday.

The first social meeting of the Congressional Club will be held Friday afternoon, December 10, at 4 o'clock, at the clubhouse, 2001 New Hampshire avenue.

The wives and daughters of new members of Senate and House are cordially invited.

Mr. Enos Mills, of Colorado, will address the club on "Our National Parks."

Mrs. Marvell, wife of Commander George R. Marvell, U. S. N., entertained at luncheon Tuesday, when her guests were Mrs. Newton E. Mason, Mrs. Victor Knapp, Mrs. John A. Lejeune, Mrs. Volney O. Chase, Mrs. Charles H. T. Lowndes, Mrs. Adelbert Althouse and Mrs. Claude C. Bloch.

Miss Anne Morgan, of New York, and Miss Maude Wetmore, of Newport, arrived at the Shoreham yesterday to pass several days.

Judge and Mrs. William W. Morrow, of San Francisco, have arrived for the meeting of the Carnegie Institute of which Judge Morrow is a member and are stopping at the Willard.

St. Martin's Catholic Church was the scene of a pretty wedding Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, when Miss Beulah Teresa Wannall became the bride of Mr. Thomas Leo Quigley.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Eugene Hannan in the presence of a small company of relatives and friends.

The bride wore a traveling suit of dark blue cloth, with a large white picture hat trimmed with white plumes and a corsage bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Leona Wannall, the bride's sister, was maid of honor, and she wore a blue suit and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. J. E. Fitzhugh acted as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom, on R street.

Mrs. Quigley left later for their future home in Danville.

Mrs. and Mrs. T. V. Walker were guests last evening of a very festive birthday party in honor of Miss Lucia Maxwell, the young daughter of Mr. and Joseph Kerr Maxwell. There were about fifty guests.

Literary games, an old-fashioned spelling bee and a musical program were among the features of the evening's entertainment. Miss Maxwell will be among the June graduates.

Mrs. and Mrs. L. C. Ramsey have returned from the South and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kerr Maxwell for the season.

Mrs. John Jay White entertained at luncheon yesterday in honor of Mrs. Sara Bard Field, of Oregon, and Miss Frances Jolliffe, of California, the envoys of the women voters to Congress.

HOROSCOPE.
"The stars incline, but do not compel."

Thursday, December 9, 1915.
Warring influences disturb this day, according to the reading of astrology. Early in the morning, Jupiter, Mercury, and the Sun are in benefic aspect, but in the afternoon, Saturn, the Sun and Neptune are adverse.

It is not a good time for asking favors or political preferment, as the signs indicate treachery and change of mind. Disappointment is suggested after encouragement has been given.

Under this way disappointments will come to those in high place. Discontent and disorganization are foreshadowed for both Republicans and Democrats in various States.

While trade comes under a planetary government that is very promising, heavy losses on the seas are prophesied. This is a particularly bad day for shipping. Storms are indicated.

Saturn is in a place especially sinister for persons born in December. They should guard their health, and be careful regarding their finances.

While Neptune is adverse, it is held that it is wise to watch out against schemes and adventures. These will multiply exceedingly.

The wise will not invest or buy while this planetary rule prevails.

It is not a fortunate time for hospitals, prisons and public institutions. There will be investigations widely within the next few months, and scandals will be revealed.

As the adverse rule of Neptune leads to a desire for luxury, crimes having the acquisition of money for their motive increase under its evil direction.

For those who desire to look far ahead, it may be interesting to know
